“Make Room for Rage” by Rev. Dr. Deane Oliva

What do you do when you are entirely frustrated with the system and cannot figure out how to be heard? After a small introduction to UUs historical relation to racial equality, we will challenge ourselves with the 2005 Youth at UU General Assembly controversy and the ensuing, provocative elevator encore. Ethical issues abound in this true UU dilemma. Come, let your voice be heard. Worship Associate: Russell Castagnaro.

Saturday, February 18, 2:00 PM - 4:30 PM

MIR Workshop with the Rev. Dr. Deane Oliva

Who is this church? An imaginative inquiry into our identity.

This workshop explores the relationship of who we are to where we want to go and how we get there. The format includes both large and small group activities and reflection which will dovetail with our Future Shapers work and culminate in suggested action plans. (Jim Cooper)

What is happening in our our First Unitarian Worship program or our Religious Education program that helped us earn this honor?"

Our goal is to craft a set of Statements of Aspiration for each theme.

Opera Night Out

6:00 pupus to share (optional) | 6:45 DVD | 9:50 reset/pau

February 17, 2017 THIRD FRIDAY Richard Strauss's Capriccio ~ Kiri Te Kanawa San Francisco Opera Orchestra

TONIGHT'S OPERA is about CHOICES. Capriccio (1942), the last opera Strauss completed, in some ways represents the culmination of the composer's work in this genre. Capriccio is sometimes described as a "conversation piece," since the plot revolves around a discussion of the nature of opera and the shifting primacy between text and music. Strauss takes up in this work ideas he had already begun to explore in the prologue to the revised version of Ariadne auf Naxos (1916), which opens with the character of the composer worrying about the reception to his art. In Ariadne the issue is not resolved, because the composer's opera is surrealistically commingled with the efforts of a commedia dell'arte group. In Capriccio, however, the matter receives attention as the composer and the poet explore their work and are challenged to compose an opera about that very discussion; in some ways the opera is a metaphor for operatic composition, a topic with obvious resonance and significance for Strauss.

The singer (perhaps muse) Madeleine must choose whom she favors between between Olivier and Flamand, the opera's embodiment of poetry and music, respectively. However, she can never abandon one for the other, since she needs both. This leaves the dramatic situation at the opening of the opera unresolved though perhaps better understood by the conclusion.

Will Social Media Save The Day?

Social Media, especially Facebook is a way to get our message of love and acceptance out to large numbers of people. As of the third quarter of 2016, Facebook had 1.79 billion monthly active users. Imagine if even one percent took our UU message to heart.

You could post that you are going to Church, that the band was incredible, that the sermon inspired, that the lunch was amazing or anything else wonderful that happened to you at First U or at UU Leeward Ohana.

You can be a voice for compassion, justice and joy in cyberspace.

If you do not have a Facebook page, all you need is a smart phone or a computer. The sooner you start; the sooner you will be part of this amazing conduit for information. If ever the world needed our message of love and acceptance, it is now. We are the Spiritual Community the world needs now.

Paula's Coming Back...

Our latest, exciting ADORE news is that Paula Cole Jones will return to Hawaii and will give a sermon and afternoon workshop at our Church on February 26th!

Also, she is planning on participating in the TIAH (The Interfaith Alliance Hawaii) Open Table Panel on Tuesday evening, February 21st.

We are doing ongoing fundraising to cover Paula's expenses ($2,000) and, so, checks made out to "First Unitarian Church of Honolulu" with "Paula Cole Jones" written in the note line would be very much appreciated.

ADORE (A Dialogue On Race and Ethnicity) was founded by Paula Cole Jones who gave a thought provoking sermon and workshops at First Unitarian in November, 2015. She continues to mentor us throughout our journey in examining issues around race as we continue to hold our regular meetings.

Describing her Sermon, Deane maintains: It's not every day that we feel like we make important decisions; ones that carry the weight of our convictions, self-worth and moral character. Today we will do so. After a brief introduction to ethics, our task will be to examine a situation, engage our feelings, extract the theology, evaluate the possibilities, expose the perils and the consequences of our action, and then, to reach a decision.
